

DRY BONES RISE

When Trust is Torn

"Marriage should be honored by all, and the marriage bed kept pure, for God will judge the adulterer and all the sexually immoral." – Hebrews 13:4

"I made a covenant with my eyes not to look lustfully at a young woman." – Job 31:1

"He heals the brokenhearted and binds up their wounds." – Psalm 147:3

Reflection

Infidelity doesn't just break vows—it breaks hearts. It leaves behind silence, suspicion, and scars. Whether you're the one who strayed or the one who stayed, the pain is real. But Scripture doesn't leave us in the rubble—it calls us to rebuild. Not with denial, but with repentance. Not with bitterness, but with grace.

Devotional Thought

Ezekiel saw bones—dry, scattered, lifeless. That's what infidelity feels like. But God didn't say, "Bury them." He said, "Prophecy to them." That's the call: speak life into what looks dead. If you've betrayed trust, repentance isn't weakness—it's warfare. If you've been betrayed, healing isn't forgetting—it's resurrection.

David knew the sting of adultery. Psalm 51 is his cry—not for escape, but for cleansing. God didn't erase the consequences, but He did restore the man. That's the promise: not erasure, but redemption.

Call to Action

- Confess. Don't justify.
- Forgive. Don't pretend.
- Rebuild. Don't rush.
- Memorize Psalm 51. Let it be your anthem.
- Invite accountability. Isolation breeds relapse. Community breeds healing.

Whether you're the offender or the wounded, God's not done. He doesn't discard broken things—He resurrects them.

Prayer

Father, this hurts.

Whether I caused it or carry it, I need You.

Heal what's shattered.

Restore what's sacred.

Speak life into this valley of betrayal.

Make me a man of integrity, humility, and hope.
